Excerpt from The Private Devotions and Manual for the Sick of Launcelot Andrews, Bishop of Winchester Thomas Watts, Prebendary of Westminster, and Archdeacon of Middlesex, who had just founded some scholarships at Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, and who bestowed upon young Andrews one of the earliest of those exhibitions.

Having proceeded to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, he was chosen, in 1576, a Fellow of his College, in preference to Mr. Dove, afterwards Bishop of Peterborough. Mean while, Jesus College, Oxford, had been founded by Hugh Price, who also appointed Andrews without delay to one of his Honorary Fellowships. As Master of Arts he now applied with signal success to the study of theological literature; and, independent of his reputation as a preacher and a casuist, the Lectures on the Commandments which he read, as catechist, to the undergraduates, procured him the admiration not only of his own associates, but of the University at large.
