OVERVIEW

A home health aide's role is to teach the patient to be as independent as possible with the adaptation of having an amputated limb. A majority of patients with an amputation are diabetic, but there are other causes as well, and aides must know the difference between minor and major amputations, as well as the potential complications that arise for the patient as a result.

This in-service provides home health aides insight into how to prevent and respond to infections in amputees, as well as how to help with the rehabilitation process and how to help patients adapt to prosthetic devices.

LESSON OBJECTIVES

After completion of this program, the home health aide will be able to:

- Identify three major causes of amputation
- List signs and symptoms that occur when there are complications postamputation
- Identify phantom limb pain and treatments for alleviating the pain
- Discuss the psychological impact of amputation
- Identify resources for the patient and the family

Contents of this lesson:

- A clearly written fact sheet
- A 10-question post-test to measure understanding of the subject matter
- An answer sheet with a place for the instructor's comments and signature
- An illustrative, homecare-specific case study
- Suggested supplemental learning activities
- An attendance log and certificate of completion
